

Virtual Design Master – Bonus Challenge

As we all know, in the new world, humans are our most precious resource. We need the manpower and skill set to make these infrastructures possible.

We also have had a big emphasis on open source in our final challenge. Luckily, GitHub survived the zombie apocalypse, and development has continued open source software.

You are tasked to come up with an innovative new feature for infrastructure provisioning. You may choose any existing open source software product, or create your own. No coding is necessary. We are looking for a well thought out and well documented idea. Remember, a picture is worth a thousand words.

This challenge is open to everyone, including season 5 competitors, previous seasons competitors, and you watching right now.
